Black Ice Software's Printer Driver 15.21 is now released with a new feature for adding Stamps to the printed document, stability improvements and minor user interface changes.

Besides the widely used "Watermark" option, in the latest release of the Printer Driver, users now can automatically add "Stamps" to mark their documents.

A Stamp is an image that appears on the top layer of the document above the document's content. Stamps are used to mark documents with information relevant to their creation, distribution or storage. In addition, a document stamp can authenticate the document with your personal or business signature, emblem or logo, help to track the document or make note of the document's status.

A watermark is a picture or text that appears behind a document's content. It's usually a light grey or other neutral color as to not distract too much from the document's purpose. Usually, a watermark identifies a company or the document's status. For instance, a watermark might say confidential, urgent, or display a symbolic graphic.

When pairing the Stamp feature with our existing agent printers System Administrators can configure multiple instances of the printer drivers each with their own unique Stamp/Watermark. This allows users to quickly switch between stamping one document with "Confidential" and adding a watermark with a company logo to another document. In a case where multiple documents are printed daily this feature could save hours of an employee's time, allowing for more productivity spent on other tasks.

The newly added Stamp feature can be found under the Printing Preferences in the Watermark/Stamp tab. By selecting the "Enable stamp" option and with a few simple adjustments like position and visibility, users can begin to mark documents with custom image files.
